1. Source & Method

Source text: Century IV of the Prophecies of Nostradamus, English rendering from Sacred-Texts Archive (100 quatrains). Method applied: ABAD (Architectural Breakdown and Decoding) — edge-state sequencing (A-B-A-D), B-stream isolation, ϕ -window compounding, multi-spacing / transition flips, numerical marker isolation. Observation-only. No external historical forcing. Hard uncertainty floor retained.

Key diagnostic note: ABAD was validated primarily on asemantic / undeciphered systems (Voynich, Rongorongo, Indus, Linear A, etc.). When applied to already-linguistic text the surface language competes with structural layers. Clean stream isolation is required; forced continuous narrative collapse is not.

2. Initial Continuous Collapse — Outcome

An early attempt to force a single continuous B-stream narrative across the full century produced an internally coherent architectural reading but failed the secondary historical-mapping test (no clean post-1566 era fit). That failure is treated as data, not error. Continuous narrative forcing is therefore abandoned. Streams are re-isolated separately.

3. Re-isolated Streams

A-Stream (Edge / Initiation Frames)

Isolated opening pressure nodes only. Pure initiation architecture:

- Residual blood still unshed; Venice demands relief after long wait; city yields at first horn.
- Death triggers French movement by sea and over the Pyrenees; Spain in distress; high-status women taken to France.
- Banners from Arras and Bourges; Gascon foot soldiers; Rhône forces bleed the Spanish near Sagunto.
- Impotent / angry prince; complaints, rape, pillage by land and infinite sails; Italy alone chases the Celts.
- Cross and peace declared; Spain and Gaul united; great disaster and bitter combat imminent; no heart remains unmoved.
- Sudden death of the first personage transfers sovereignty; one of low age rises late and high; land and sea must fear him.

B-Stream (Core Body / Repeating Pressure Lattice)

Isolated mid-sequence escalation and repeating internal nodes. No forced century-long continuity:

- Venus covered by the Sun; hidden form under the splendor; Mercury exposes them to fire; warlike noise insults it.
- Sun eclipsed by Mercury and placed second; Vulcan-Hermes made into food; Sun returns pure, red and golden.
- Moon refuses the Sun eleven more times; all raised and lowered by degree until little gold remains; after famine and plague the secret is uncovered.
- Duke, king and queen engrossed while Byzantine chief is captive on Samothrace; order eaten before the assault; reverse-metalead side follows the blood trail.
- Libra watches the Hesperias take the monarchy of heaven and earth; Asia's forces do not perish in sight; only seven hold the hierarchy.
- Ambitious colonel seizes the greatest army by false invention against his prince and is discovered under the arbor.

- Saturn and Mars equal and fiery; air very dry, long meteor; secret fires blaze a great place; little rain, warm wind, wars and incursions.
- Agen vexed by Périgord as far as the Rhône; Gascons and Bigorre unite to betray the temple while the priest is still preaching.
- Saturn conjoined with the Sun in Aquarius; powerful king received and anointed at Reims and Aix; after conquests he murders the innocent.
- Serpent seen near the royal bed at night; dogs do not bark; then a prince so royal is born in France that all princes see him come from heaven.

D-Stream (Closing / Resolution Frames)

Isolated end-state and survival nodes only:

- Two great brothers chased out of Spain; elder conquered under the Pyrenees; sea, Rhône and Lake Geneva run red from the German direction; Narbonne and Béziers contaminated from Agde.
- Realm left to two who hold it only briefly; after three years and seven months they make war; two Vestals rebel; younger is victor in Brittany.
- Elder sister of the British Isles born fifteen years before her brother; by her promise verification is procured and she succeeds to the kingdom of the balance.
- Year of Mercury, Mars and Venus in retrogression; line of the great Monarch does not fail; one elected by the Portuguese near Cádiz who grows very old in peace and reigns.
- Valiant elder son of the king's daughter hurls the Celts far back with thunderbolts; remaining ones are few and distant and driven deep into the Hesperias.
- Celestial fire falls on the royal edifice; light of Mars goes out; seven months of great war; people die through evil; at Rouen and Évreux the king does not fail.

4. Numerical Markers (Isolated)

Explicit counts and time spans only, in order of appearance:

Marker	Context
11	Moon refuses the Sun eleven more times
7	Only seven hold the hierarchy
3 years + 7 months	Dual rule ends; war begins
15 years	Elder sister born before her brother
7 months	Great war after the light of Mars goes out

Observable oppositions: 11 (refusal) vs repeating 7 (holding / duration / destruction); 15 (long preparatory displacement) vs short intense 7-month intervals; pure single counts vs the hybrid 3+7. The number 7 is forced to serve both stability and terminal war roles, generating internal polarity.

5. Self-Referential & Self-Verifying Markers

Certain nodes are tautological or self-evident by the meaning of their own words:

- “Only seven hold the hierarchy” — “only” + the number already restricts; the statement is self-limiting.
- “Elder sister born ... before her brother” — “elder” already means she was born earlier; the added clause restates what the word contains.
- “The light of Mars will go out” — once the light is extinguished, Mars has no viewable light by definition. The consequence is already contained in the event.

These are self-anchoring / self-verifying markers (classical terms: tautology, pleonasm). The text confirms its own statements from the inside without requiring external reference.

6. Structural Clue

When a layered system begins producing self-referential / self-verifying nodes, it is no longer primarily pointing outward. It is closing loops. The architecture is using internal consistency as its own check.

Under ABAD observation this marks either a lock / gate (the layer is sealing and no longer requires external confirmation) or a stream boundary (the edge of a stream has been reached where the structure stops needing outside reference and begins confirming itself).

Simpler: the text has started checking itself. That change in behavior is the marker. The layer is closing. It is locking itself.

7. Status & Confidence

Streams are separated. No continuous narrative has been forced across them. Numerical markers and self-verifying nodes are isolated. The linguistic-surface interference relative to asemic systems is acknowledged as real.

Structural coherence of the isolated streams and numerical polarity: moderate. Historical mapping confidence: low (no clean post-1566 single-era fit). Self-verification observation: high confidence as a present textual feature. Overall claim level remains under the hard uncertainty floor used throughout ABAD work.

This report records the current state of the pass. It does not assert a completed decryption.
